VOL. NO. 77. CAMERON, MILAM COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1937 TEN PAGES TODAY 23

BIG MAJORITY FOR CITY BONDS

The tax payers on Tuesday gave the City Government $150,000 to invest in water utilities as the judgment of the officials dictate. The election was a blanket indorsement, without condition.

Under the terms of the mandate written at the polls the City Government may proceed at once to build a system of water utilities in competition with existing interests, if it so elects. If the Community Public Service Company refuses to sell its plant for $100,000 as offered by the "gentleman's agreement" among city officials, the people have said by their vote: "This is your authority to go ahead and build us a water system."

The Community Public Service Company has said, in effect, it will not sell.

The election is without parallel in confidence expressed in City leaders. As a compliment to Mayor Smith's personal popularity and leadership, the election is without precedent in the history of the city. The Mayor has succeeded, in part, with a cherished ambition for City owned public utilities. With this initial budget of $150,000 he will be able, with the blessings of his constituents, to begin construction of properties long sought for his city.

The Herald re-iterates its opposition to a dual system of utilities and hopes that a more sound judgment will prevail to prevent such an ill advised adventure.

There is nothing at hand to indicate what disposition will be made of the $150,000. That is: will the City be able to buy the existing utilities or will it proceed with its own plant. The election authorized the City to proceed with either plan it elects to adopt. In the meantime "Where do we go from here?"

Endless arguments for and against the enactment of wage and hour laws have been put forward, and it must be admitted that the problem is one concerning which there may be honest differences of opinion.

One point, however, seems to have been quite generally over-looked, and that is the effect such laws, especially if carried to extremes, would have on older workers, whose plight is already a matter of deep concern. The establishment of higher wages and shorter hours by law would certainly place workers 45 years of age and over at an even greater disadvantage than that which they are under now.

It is an unfortunate fact that many employers set an age limit when employing additional workers. There is little use in arguing that such discrimination is wrong. If one employer, for example, should employ a force composed principally of old men, he could not compete with another employer whose force was composed of younger and more active men obtained at the same wage.

A law might possibly compel an employer to retain older men already on his payroll, in some cases, but it could not prevent his reducing his force and laying off the older or less efficient men first. When a force was to be increased an empolyer could hardly be forced to employ older men if younger ones were available.

Many of our most intelligent labor leaders understand these facts, and are not in favor of rigidly establishing hours and wages by law. They believe a free exercise of the right of collective bargaining, without government interference, to be preferable to rigid regulation through legislative action.

It is an amazing fact that the appalling number of deaths and injuries which result from sheer carelessness make no greater impression upon the average person. This is especially true with respect to drivers of automobiles.

Persons who are ordinarily careful in protecting their health and property often throw discretion to the winds the moment they grasp the wheel of a motor car, and flirt with

Vets March Again On Big Pavement

BY H. B. CeCLELLEN

The Nineteenth National Convention of the American Legion held in New York last week was the most largely attended and the most spectacular in the history of the Legion. They come by train, boat, airplane, in automobiles, buses and I suspect some of them hitch-hiked. The New York papers estimated the attendance at from 250,000 to 400,000.

The opening session, Monday, Sept. 20th, was held in Madison Square Garden. At the opening sessions the distinguished guests are always presented and the public admitted. At this session Governor Lehman of the State of New York and Mayor Laguardia spoke. Before her death Madame Schumann-Heink was always present to open the conventions with the National athem. And until 1933 the president of the United States always addressed the convention at the opening session.

After the opening session, at which Madison Square Garden was filled to overflowing, the other two sessions were held in the Metropolitan Opera house.

The big parade was staged on Tuesday, the 21st. This was the biggest parade that New York has ever seen. It started up Fifth Avenue at nine o'clock Tuesday morning, and the last unit, which was the New York Department, passed the reviewing stand around three-thirty Wednesday

$150,000 MADE READY FOR WATER UTILITIES

Bonds in the sum of $150,000 were authorized by the tax payers in the special election Tuesday The majority was more than two to one in favor of the bonds. The vote was: For 364. Against 155.

The order calling the election sets out that the bonds may be used to purchase present water utilities or construct a new system as the City Council elects.

Mayor Smith in a personally staged rally Monday night made the first public statement for the bonds and his personal popularity and leadership of the forces favoring public ownership of utilities, were responsible for the large majority given the issue.

Whether the city will now attempt to build its own system or enter into negotiations for the purchase of the plant of the Community Public Service Company, will no dobut be decided upon in the near future. Under the mandate of the election the city may follow either course. Cameron was due to enter the first cycle of municipal utility ownership as a result of this overwhelming indorsement by the people.

The Yoemen play their first Conference game Friday night in Cameron against Rockdale.

Opening of the fall schedule for the Conference was expected to bring thousands to the Yoemen bowl.

Coach Hubert Dennis tied his first conference game of the season against Rosebud.

Coach Wood took a decision from Caldwell 13 to 7 and all but lost the game in the last half when his punters and center went haywire. The Yoemen, however looked better in their first game this year than when they took the field last year against Marlin.

Chandler, a new face in the Yoemen backfield, was the sensation of the game, although Kennon showed promise of getting along with the ball.

NOBODY HOME

(Editor's note: This article is published as a news item and represents the personal views of Mr. Ferguson only.)

The legislature has met again to take up the question of taxation, submitted as the only question by the Governor.

Turning around completely face about from his declaration in his opening speech at Waxahachie that there was no need of any new taxes, he now humbly admits that there should be levied $15,000,000 (millions) additional taxes to carry on the government. The only justification which he urges is that he made an honest mistake. He now calls on the legislature to help him cure his mistake.

The Governor's mistake was caused and is now caused because he had been unmindful of his official duties and responsibilities. An admission of mistake will not satisfy official neglect. Under the law passed in 1931, Article 688, the Governor express language, "is made the chief budget officer of the state." In plain language it is made his duty to consider the estimates made by the Board of Control and if he disapproves any item made by such board he shall leave the space for said item blank thereby vetoing the same.

Then from all the estimates furnished him he shall send a special budget message to the legislature which shall include the sources of revenue from which all the appropriations will or can be paid.

It is made a criminal offense for any officer of the state to refuse to furnish such information to the legislature. Maybe the Governor has not refused to furnish this important information to the legislature. If his friends want to make this technical defense for him, they can do so, but the fact remains that such information has not been furnished to the legislature.

While the Governor was attending wedding ceremonies in Colorado and Governors' meeting in Washington and speed boat contests in Louisiana and visiting for two weeks with the Mexicans in Mexico, he could have stayed at home and given some valuable time to the preparation of an official budget which the law requires him to make and send to the legislature.

He can no longer get behind the constitution and say he is the head of the executive department only and can not direct the legislature what to do. The law above referred to has changed that, and the Governor is now made the chief budget officer of the state. If this is another honest mistake, its too bad for the state and the people.

The legislature waited all through the regular session for the Governor's budget. It yet awaits the Governor's budget, but it seems in vain.

If he has a plan to cut down appropriations and provide revenues to pay the balance, it would be a great service to the state if he would submit it all in one budget and the legislature could soon end its labors and go home.

My wife submitted a budget as required by law, and reduced appropriations and expenses about thirteen million dollars, and the legislature approved it. It is easy to do things when you know how.

Doesn't Like Way Texas Pension Law Is Administered

To the Semi-Weekly Farm News.

I have been studying about the way the old-age pension system is administered. I think it's one of the most disgusting, unequal discriminating things I ever heard of. The people of Texas voted for this law. The way it's being administered is full of favoritism and discrimination.

Can you tell me any other system of pensioners in this or any other State where an applicant was eligible under the law of the country, was put on the pension rolls and then dropped off at the administration's discretion?

The system that is being followed now is a pauper's law, nothing more nor less. At the suggestion of our Governor it became so. I quote one of his statements, "Old folks need not worry; they will be taken care of."

Mr. Carpenter, the first State supervisor, made a fine statement when he was pushed up a little higher by his co-operator Governor.

Allred said it took a big man like Roosevelt for President; that he (Allred) was small potatoes. This is where he hit the nail squarely. If he ever made a correct statement that was it.

I wish I had more confidence in him than I have. What does he care so he gets his $1,000 a month? Why did he not tell the Legislature to deliberalize on that and all his bunch?

Some of the members of the Legislature wanted to pass some kind of a bill to produce revenue for the old-age pensions but Allred threatened with a veto in advance. A goodly number of that Legislature are cowards. If they felt any real interest in it why didn't they frame a reasonable conservative bill and pass it over his head? Afraid to try it—afraid of their jobs.

When the report started awhile back that they were going to cut the pension roll 30,000 or 40,000 they denied it in the press and over the radio. I read it in the press and kept my eye on the proceedings. Some gentlemen represeting the Federal department didn't want his name used, referred them to New York as a criterion, making the statement that New York with all its millions of population only had 90,000 pensioners.

What does a large percentage of New York's population consists of? Is it old, hoary-handed, stoop-shouldered, worn-out men and women that have given their all and their lives to make Texas a God-like country to live in. When the people of Texas voted on a pension law, did they have in mind what New York or any other State is doing Texas is fully able to take care of its old people without any advice from New York or any other State. If Texas had a Governor and a Legislature that had any real interest in the affairs of the common people and backbone and stamina they could establish a pension system for Texas of at least $15 per month for every old and broken-down man and woman in the State and independent of the Federal Government or any other country.

When you make out a certificate of application for a pension (they call it 'old-age assistance," which is a term they use to slip by the real law)' you must furnish evidence of your birth and place where you were born, together with the signature of two reliable witnesses with their affidavits as to your legal citizenship and general financial condition and so on. Do they consider this affidavit to your application and also of the witness any good? No. they look upon it as a scrap of paper and send out those young fellows from colleges and universities to see if you milk a cow and have got a chicken. These starched-collar gentlemen ride in a fine car and draw a handsome salary to run up and down the road and go back and report that this old man A, up at Burnet or Llano is milking a cow and has some chickens in the yard and his daughter was dressed in nice, clean clothing.

Think about it for just a minute or two—$50,000 a month for administering this beggarly dole. I have been informed that they employ in the neighborhood of 75 or 100 clerks in the office for this clerical work. Think about that a little while. The idea of taking 75 or 100 people to do the work of twenty or twenty-five clerical experts. How do you issue your farm paper so regularly and promptly twice a week? You don't use 50, 75 or 100 clerks to do it, and besides you send out more real knowledge and information in one issue than that bunch will ever know in a lifetime.

Governor Allred may mean well, but I think he has lost sight of his real responsibility to the aged of Texas. What Texas needs right now in a Governor is a well-balanced man in age and mind, and a man of ripe and conservative judgment and equity of administration of the laws of Texas without fear or favor. A Legislature of the same character and caliber and not afraid of their jobs.

more consistent game. He was hurt in the second ruarter and Coach Wood let him go back after a scoring threat in the third when the Hornets had advanced through the line from brilliant off tackle and end runs by Sebesta.

Jeff Cammer and Robert Masopust playing end for the Yoemen brought a thrill and indulged the fans a belief the Coach may expect much from these men.

Whether the shifting of Harry Hughes from the line to backfield will prove an advantage to the former guard, remains to be seen. Clifford Guess played his usual game at guard.

I do not hold any ill feelings toward anyone because of my defeat, and I feel like that I have profited for having made the race, due to the many acquaintances which I made over the district, and this alone was worth my efforts.

Life Story of Wild Bill Hickok In "Plainsman" at Milam October 3

The tender love which existed between two of the hardest characters of the old West, "Wild Bill" Hickok, two-fisted hard-shooting exponent of law and order as the newly opened territory knew it, and "Calamity Jane," a beauty who packed a pair of six-guns and drove a six-horse stagecoach over what then passed for roads, is the basis of Cecil B. DeMille's latest masterpiece, "The Plainsman," which begins on Oct. 3 at the Milam Theatre.

History relates how Hickok, played by Gary Cooper, was retained by the government to investigate gun-running in the West because he was among the most--feared of the bold and toughened characters of a region known for its hard and brave men, when that region was first opened for immigration, around 1870.

It also relates that Hickok never wounded an adversary. It was always a sure hit, and with this reputation as his letter of introduction, the handsome soldier of fortune went into the Far West to find out who was selling rifles to the Indians in express violation of a government order.

Meets "Calamity Jane"

On the way he meets the beautiful "Calamity Jane," so named by a troop of soldiers who found her as a child in the wilderness beside the bodies of her dead parents—killed by Indians. They never knew her real name and she was, indeed a child of calamity. The handsome Kickok loves the beautiful "Calamity Jane," but never lets her know it, mostly because he resents her familiarity with other men. But she loves him and never has any compunction about showing it.

Hickok discovers who is responsible for the gun-running after General George A. Custer and his whole Cavalry Regiment are wiped out by the Indians at Little Big Horn. But the discovery costs him dear. One of his prisoners, the notorious Jack McCall, portrayed in the motion picture by Porter Hall, whom he herds into the Deadwood Saloon, operated by "Calamity Jane," brings tragedy in a breathless climax.

Covers Decade of History

The DeMille film begins around 1865 when the Civil War ended and the trek West was begun, and ends shortly after the Custer massacre. It is broadly conceived in the traditional DeMille manner. A thousand Indians from the Tongue River Reservation were used in the filming, as well as several troops of Federal and State cavalry, to give "Sweep" to the background.

Others in the cast are James Ellison, as "Buffalo Bill" Cody; Helen Burgess, a newcomer to films, as his wife; Paul Harvey, Victor Varconi, George Hayes and "Fuzzy" Knight.

Legion Convention

morning. It took about an hour for the New York Department alone, to pass. There were more than five hundred bands, and drum and bugle corps in the parade besides the hundreds of floats and colors, and other thousands marching in the parade. The only musical organization the Texas department had was the Austin drum and bugle corps with their colorful cowboy outfits on, and they got a big hand all along the line of march. Millions lined the sidewalks to view the parade, and at three in the morning very few of then seemed to have gone home.

Every night during the convention except the night ot the parade, thousands of Legionairres congregated in the Times Square district, which is the cross-roads of the world. The police had difficulty in getting traffic through the first night, and after that there seemed to be about twice as many New Yorkers as Legionairres mixing and mingling with them, and the police threw up the sponge and suspended and routed traffic around Times Square from 42nd to 47th Street, each night. I think this is the first time since armistice day that the natives have awakened from their hum-drum, money-grabbing existence. One New Yorker told me he thought the convention was more like a carnival than a convention, which was pretty accurate, after all.

The Queen Mary was docked in New York on Wednesday and open to visitors for several hours. Several thousand Legonairres took advantage of the opportunity of visiting a real ocean liner. At every place of interest you visited—Radio City, Columbia University, Greenwich Village, the Empire State Building and even Chinatown and the Bowery—you would find multitudes of veterans, seemingly bent on seeing New York. I was amused at a couple of fellows from Los Angeles I overheard talking on the observation tower of the Empire State building, who seemed to think in terms of earthquakes. One of them remarked that the Empire State "wouldn't stand much of an earthquake," then they began looking around at the various Manhattan skyscrapers and pointing out the ones that "couldn't take it." Apparently, they had experienced some of the California earthquakes, and couldn't trust a skyscraper any where.

After the convention was over, quite a large number of veterans and some with their families took advantage of their opportunity of a life ime to visit Europe on reduced fares and without passports..

All steamship lines granted Legionairres and their families a 20 per cent reduction to Europe and return, and the railroads in England and all of the larger countries on the continent give a 50 per cent reduction in train fares, and the railroads of Germany give a 60 per cent reduction.

An American Legion membership card passes you aywhere that a pass port will without any of the red tape.

On October 4th, Mussolini will give all Legionairres in Rome a reception, and on the following day Pope Pius will receive them.

At the closing session of the convention on Thursday Daniel J. Doherty of Massachusetts was elected National Commander, and Los Angeles was voted the 1938 convetion city.

The people of New York were very gracious to us during the convention, we had many reunions of old army organizations, many of us renewed wartime friendships among the people of New York, and I am sure that, on taking their leave, the other hundreds of thousands of veterans who had the privilege of attending the convention felt as I did—that their trip back to Broadway and Fifth Avenue was more than worth while.

Newspaper Story Always Popular At Cameron Today

A newspaper story by, of and with newspaper people—that's "Exclusive',' the drama opening Thursday at the Cameron Theatre.

It was written by a newspaperman, at least one of the men who adapted it for the screen is a newspaperman, its feminine star is a newspaperwoman and another—as far as the screen is concerned at least—is one of America's best known reporters.

The author of "Exclusive" is John C. Moffitt, formerly with the Kansas City "Star," who was recently called one of America's outstanding film critics. He now writes exclusively for the cameras. The producer is Benjamin Glazer, one time dramatic, music and art critic of the Philadelphia "Press," and numbered among American's "six best writers."

The feminine star of "Exclusive" is beautiful Frances Farmer, formerly staff correspondent of one of the large news gathering agencies, who came to pictures after completing a year in Europe on a "roving assignment." She portrays the role of a muck-raking newspaperwoman whose principles conflict with those of her reporter sweetheart, Fred MacMurry, and her editor father, Charlie Ruggles.

One of the screen play writers is Rian James formerly with the Brooklyn "Daily Eagle," who is now prting motion picture scenarios for Paramount Pictures.

The records do not disclose whether Charlie Ruggles has ever worked for a newspaper but as far as America is concerned he is Reporter No. One. This is by virtue of the many newspaper roles he has portrayed, his first being in the sensational success, "Gentlemen of the Press." For the most part these have been comedy roles so the Ruggles of "Exclusive" will come as a distinct surprise to film-goers. While there is plenty of comedy in the Ruggles role, it is the first dramatic role portrayed by the veteran comedian.

The cast also includes Lloyd Nolan, the reporter of the success "King of Gamblers," Fay Holden, Edward H. Robins, Lee Bowman, Harlan Briggs, William Mansell, Ralph Morgan and many others.

Martin Johnson's Borneo Story Comes To Cameron Theatre Saturday

There are people who declare they have seen fish walk. The best treatment for such people is to place cold compresses on the head, and give them two aspirins every hour until the sight vanishes from before their eyes.

But it develops that there are actually such fish, and they appear in pictures for the first time in Martin Johnson's last and greatest adventure, "Borneo," the Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson production, released by Twentieth Ceneury-Fox, which opens Saturday at the Cameron Theatre.

With the utmost clarity, closeups of an entire family of anabas scandens, better known as climbing perch are shown leaving the water, creeping up the bank of a river and pushing themselves along by means of strong fins and an occasional flip of the tail.

As explained by Lowell Thomas in his commentary accompanying the picture, these fish are "the real McCoy," and not merely exaggerated tadpoles or lizards. They are related to the trout, bass, and perch. Their difference lies in their rare talent of having adapted themselves to the conditions of the Borneo jungle—sudden floods, and pools that swiftly dry up. They dislike the idea of being stranded, and are prepared for overland journeying whenever their natural habitat suddenly evaporates. The tangle of trees, branches and roots along the shore becomes their play-ground with the sudden receding of the waters.

These tree-climbing fish are only one of the strange oddities to be seen in "Borneo." Other freaks of nature photographed for the first time are flying snakes, the proboscis monkey, oysters that grow on trees, and monkeys capable of jumping a hundred feet without getting hurt.

Included also in the picture which is replete with action and thrills, is the pursuit and capture of a full-grown giant orang-utan, and the expedition fighting treacherous rapids as it advances up a jungle stream.

Sharp Gridders Showing Progress

Sharp High School seems to be snapping out of a two year losing streak and is playing heads-up football. Last Friday evening they downed Little River 9 to 7. Sharp had things going their way from the kickoff. Led by Backhaus, Hooks, Byrd, White and Horton in the backfield Sharp ran up a total of 15 first downs to Academys 5. The Sharp line played well both offensively and defensively. Schanoszke, Wilson, Lawson and Laffere starred in the line.

Little River played good football in the last half and marched to a touchdown on a series of pass plays.

The Sharp Club is coached by Weldon Bryd an ex-Southwestern man.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hicks spent Saturday in Austin.

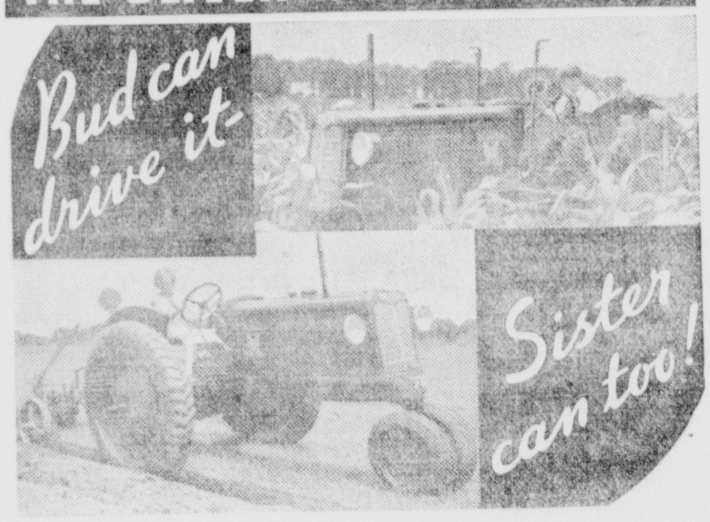
THE OLIVER ROW-CROP "70"



Just a light touch on the steering wheel turns the new Row Crop "70" completely around. It's the easiest tractor to operate you ever saw. Every control's right at your finger tips—and you have steering and gear shifting like an automobile.

This is Oliver's new 6-cylinder Tractor that has caused so much talk. There are two "70's"—one designed solely for regular gasoline—and the other to get the utmost fuel economy out of kerosene or distillate.

With either one you'll get unusually great power with light weight—and great speed. Under ordinary soil conditions, you can plow with two 14-inch bases at over 4 miles an hour! That gets the work done quicker and gives more spare time for other things.

The Row Crop "70" comes from the tractor factory of the founders of the tractor industry. You'll want to see this latest, modern tractor at once—with its complete line of mounted listing, busting, planting and cultivating equipment.

Chicken Disease Control Is Demonstrated

How to control chicken pox or "sorehead" in poultry and turkeys at less than on tec ena dose was demonstrated by C. H. Yoe Future Farmers at the C. N. Payne farm Thursday morning. How to successfully remove intestinal parasites from poultry was also shown. A flock of 150 White Leghorn pullets were treated for pox using the follicle method of applying the vaccine. With this method, feathers are removed from the leg and a small brush is used to wet from 3 to 5 of the feather follicles with the liquid vaccine. In from 7 to 10 days a scab like formation will indicate the "takes" and all birds will then have a life time immunity against the disease, it was stated. The pullets were also treated for internal pests as were 50 hens. The treatment for pox is simple, quick and effective, and poultrymen having trouble with this disease are urged to vaccinate in order to prevent its occurrence. Anyone wanting further information concerning such vaccination should get in touch with the Vocational Agriculture department of Yoe High School.

death through failing to observe the most elementary principles of safety.

They will take a chance at a grade crossing, speed while rounding a blind curve, pass other cars under dangerous conditions, and do other foolish things which menace life and limb—seemingly oblivious to the fact that one slight mistake of judgment may prove fatal to them or to those who happen to be passengers in their cars.

The jaywalker is equally reckless, taking the chance of being run down for the sake of saving a few steps or a moment's time. In fact, many pedestrians are even more careless than the average motorist.

Saftey education has been the means of reducing accidents to some slight extent, but the lamentable fact remains that no amount of warning has any appreciable effect upon the majority of people.

The result is that 37,000 or more persons are killed and about a million are injured in automobiles accidents in the United States every year, while at least 90 per cent of these casualties might be averted by the use of ordinary common sense.

When the Tennessee Power Co., a privately-owned utility, found it necessary to increase its generating capacity recently, the question arose as to whether the additional power required should be obtained through building a steam plant or by purchase from the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The company decided that building its own plant would be the cheaper method, and applied to the state public service commission for permission to construct a $2,000,000 steam plant. An effort was made to force the company to buy its additional power from the TVA, and the commission favored that course provided a satisfactory rate could be obtained.

After extensive hearings, at which leading engineers testified unanimously that the private steam plant could supply the required power at less cost than that at which the TVA offered to sell it, the commission granted permission to build the new plant.

In making its decision the commission said "the company, according to the overwhelming testimony of all witnesses, can generate power cheaper than it can purchase it" from the TVA. Thus, it seems, the much publicized government "yardstick" for power costs has again proved to be unreliable and of no benefit to the public.

Extensive long distance telephone hook-ups are being employed more and more by large business organizations for the rapid dissemination of sales and other data to their many salesmen throughout the country, but one recently arranged to connect twenty meetings of Buick dealers in various key cities was quite unusual.

The object was to enable dealers to join in a preview of the new 1938 cars, which are said to have some startling new engine and ride control features; also to coordniate a program for the introduction of the new cars and lay plans for the forthcoming automobile shows to begin late in October.

Flying squadrons headed by different executives went to the various cities to hold meetings each day with dalers in particular sections. At each meeting there was the telephone hookup with every other meeting held that day. Thus, at some time during the week each of the principal executives was enabled to address all of the hundreds of Buick dealers throughout the country.

The successful execution of the plan was quite an achievement for a single automobile company, and it again illustrated the fact that it's a small world, after all.

will pay $10 each for the ten best submitted each week during the ten week contest. At the end of the ten week period grand prizes of $100, $75, $50 and $25 will be awarded for the four best entries submitted during the contest."

In explaining the reason for the contest, company officials said:

"One of the most difficult things to obtain is an interior view showing gas heating equipment in natural home surroundings. We have a definite need for such pictures, for experience has shown us that it is difficult for customers who wish to buy gas heating eruipment to visualize how appliances they are considering will look in their home. It will heat comfortably, but it harmonize with other furniture, they wonder? The photos we hope to obtain through this contest will be of great assistance in helping them decide just which type of heating appliance will look best in their own home."

The contest is open to anyone living in a home supplied gas by any of the Lone Star Gas System companies with the exception of professional photographers or others who may take pictures for commercial purposes, and Lone Sar Gas System employes and their immediate families. Companies participating in the contest include Lone Star Gas Co., The Dallas Gas Co., Texas Cities Gas Co. and Community Natural Gas Co. Entries may be submitted at the nearest gas company office or mailed directly to Lone Star Gas Company Advertising Department, 305 South Harwood, Dallas.
